Assaying Services

Our Company is amongst a handful of gold and silver refineries of Abu Dhabi offering full-scale assaying services on-site at its facilities.

We specialise in traditional Fire Assay Method, also known as the Cupellation Method, to determine the concentration of Gold. The technique uses Titration and Inductive Coupled Plasma or ICP to determine the purity of metals, with very high precision. X-ray Fluorescence is used to determine the elements present inside the alloys. ICP is also used to verify the purity of scrap gold that cannot be detected by fire assay due to influence of contamination group elements. It is also used to cross check the final product and results to determine chemical concentration and company waste chemical specifications for disposal or reuse.
